THE OFFICE OF SUSTAINABILITY

Our Office of Sustainability (OOS) was established in 2020 to help guide the development and implementation of our companywide sustainability strategy and initiatives. Led by our Chief Sustainability Officer (CSO), the OOS works cross-functionally with internal business partners to drive progress against our sustainability commitments.

MANAGEMENT OVERSIGHT

The Brighthouse Financial Sustainability Steering Committee (SSC) was established to provide oversight of our company's corporate sustainability program. Comprised of relevant senior leaders from across the company, the SSC serves in its capacity to review, assess, and provide feedback and guidance on our company's efforts to advance our sustainability strategy and initiatives. This includes our policies, processes, and procedures to address topics such as regulatory compliance, data governance, public disclosure, and key sustainability and climate-related risks and opportunities.

At least twice annually, the OOS updates the SSC on our sustainability program, as well as the broader sustainability landscape. As needed, members of the OOS also engage with business leaders through various other internal committees and working groups, such as our Senior Leadership Team, Operational Risk Committee, and Climate Disclosure Working Group.

BOARD OVERSIGHT

Our Board and its Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee (NCGC) oversee our sustainability program. On an annual basis, the CSO updates our Board and NCGC regarding enhancements to our sustainability strategy, our assessment and management of sustainability and climate-related risk factors and opportunities, and our disclosure initiatives.

Because sustainability and climate issues can manifest as business risks and opportunities in different ways, oversight of specific topics is distributed across various Board committees, depending on the nature of the issue and potential impacts. For example, other committees of the Board oversee the following aspects of our company's sustainability program:

- The Compensation and Human Capital Committee oversees our company's management of human capital matters, including pay equity, talent and leadership development, culture, succession planning for the CEO and other executives, and the development and execution of our company's inclusion and belonging strategy.
- The Audit Committee oversees our company's regulatory compliance, cybersecurity program, financial reporting processes and controls, and operational risks where sustainability and climate-related issues may be relevant.
- The Finance and Risk Committee oversees our company's enterprise risk management program, including sustainability and climate-related risks and related impacts on our company's risk profile.
- The Investment Committee oversees matters relating to our company's investment portfolio, including the potential financial implications of our portfolio's exposure to sustainability and climate-related physical and transition risks.

Business Ethics and Integrity

At Brighthouse Financial, we are committed to adhering to the highest standards of business conduct at all times – putting honesty, fairness, and trustworthiness at the center of all that we do.

CODES OF CONDUCT AND COMPANY POLICIES

We maintain a robust framework of policies and programs to support this commitment, including the Brighthouse Financial Codes of Conduct. We have adopted three codes of conduct that reflect our core values and sustain them in our corporate culture. This includes the Code of Conduct for Financial Management, that applies to our CEO, CFO, Chief Accounting Officer, Chief Auditor, Corporate Controller, and all other Brighthouse Financial employees who perform similar functions or who may obtain access to any financial records covered by the Code of Conduct for Financial Management; the Code of Conduct for Employees, which applies to all Brighthouse Financial employees, including officers; and the Code of Conduct for Directors, which applies to members of the Board.

Annually, all employees are required to review and certify compliance with relevant codes of conduct. Employees are also required to complete more extensive training on the codes of conduct on a biennial basis. Additionally, all new employees are required to complete a regulatory overview course highlighting key topics and policies, including the Code of Conduct, within 30 days of their start date.

In addition to our codes of conduct, Brighthouse Financial maintains policies and guidelines that establish and communicate our overarching operational and ethical standards, align with our company's strategy and risk tolerances, and set standards for compliance with applicable regulatory requirements. Employees have access to all policies and guidelines through our company's intranet, including but not limited to our:

- Anti-Fraud Policy and Whistleblower Policy, which establish standards, procedures, and controls for detecting, reporting, and investigating various types of fraudulent, illegal, and unethical behavior and activity, including bribery, corruption, and questionable accounting practices.
- Artificial Intelligence Policy, which outlines the governing principles and standards regarding the acceptable use of Artificial Intelligence (AI) systems and provides a framework for the use of AI systems to mitigate risk.
- Communication with the Public and Social Media Policy, which establishes standards and controls designed to ensure that all communications on behalf of the company are professional and respectful and that information regarding our company's brand, mission, culture, values, products, and financial performance is accurate and does not contain any discriminatory, false, or misleading content. This includes any communications and materials used to advertise or sell our products.

- Money Laundering Prevention and Sanctions Policy, which establishes anti-money laundering and counter-terrorist financing standards and procedures designed to ensure compliance with applicable regulatory requirements, including written protocols for employees to identify and report suspected money laundering, tax evasion, or other criminal activity.
- Employee Handbook Policy Against Sexual and Other Discriminatory Harassment or Discrimination, which prohibits employees from engaging in actions and using words of a sexual or discriminatory nature and harassing or intimidating other individuals because of their protected characteristics.
- Policy for Engaging Government Officials and Regulators and Political Activity Policy, which set forth expectations, requirements, and prohibitions related to interactions and activities that may present a conflict of interest, such as lobbying, making political contributions, and exchanging gifts or entertainment.
- Resilience and Response Policy, which establishes operational standards for identifying, evaluating, and responding to an event with the potential to disrupt normal business operations.
- Third-Party Risk Management Policy, which outlines the framework used by our company to identify and manage potential risks arising from utilizing unaffiliated third-party products or service providers to perform or support business operations.

REPORTING ILLEGAL OR UNETHICAL BEHAVIOR

The Brighthouse Financial Code of Conduct for Employees requires all employees to immediately report any violation or potential violation of a law, regulation, or company policy to our Compliance team. To help ensure that employees are informed about our company's reporting and escalation process for illegal and unethical behavior, our Compliance and Learning and Development teams collaborate to deliver annual fraud and ethics training to all company employees, as well as distribute periodic companywide communications to raise awareness.

Employees, along with external stakeholders, can also anonymously report illegal and unethical behavior by calling our company's whistleblower hotline or filing an anonymous report online, which is managed by an unaffiliated third-party vendor. In addition, the Brighthouse Financial Audit Committee Complaint Procedures allow for internal or external stakeholders to anonymously report allegations of illegal and unethical behavior to the Chair of the Board's Audit Committee.

REGULATORY COMPLIANCE

The Regulatory Risk Management Program was established to manage regulatory risk both within and across our company and its subsidiaries. Through this program, we conduct ongoing and proactive evaluations of current and potential regulatory risks, and establish processes for the identification, assessment, monitoring, testing, and reporting of such risks. The program was designed to help ensure that:

- Ownership of compliance risks and mitigating control activities are assigned
- Effective processes and controls are established and maintained to ensure that our company adheres to applicable laws and regulations
- Controls are subject to ongoing monitoring and testing to identify and mitigate regulatory risk
- Issues uncovered by the program are promptly reported to senior management and appropriately remediated

Our Compliance team performs quarterly risk assessments of certain business processes, risks, and controls, with additional risk assessments performed on an as-needed basis. Risk assessments serve to identify the inherent risks of operating in a highly regulated industry; assess the business policies, procedures, and controls that mitigate such risks; and document the residual risk that such inherent risks pose to our company. Risk assessments are conducted in accordance with our company's risk assessment standards, categorizing the severity of a risk's potential impacts as low, medium, high, or critical.

Employee Training, Communication, and Raising Awareness

To help maintain a safe and productive workplace, we establish and oversee programs to raise awareness of, and train employees on, important standards, policies, and procedures, as required by applicable regulations, company policy, or best practices.

In addition to business conduct training, our Compliance team distributes frequent reminders on key topics to all employees through our company's weekly internal newsletter. Each year, as part of our Ethics Awareness Month Program, our Compliance team also spotlights business ethics topics through a variety of ethics-focused communications from senior leadership, as well as other resources made available to employees.

In 2024, we administered the following mandatory, companywide training courses:

- U.S. Workplace Harassment
- Fraud Prevention and Ethics
- Privacy Training
- Safer Web Browsing
- Code of Conduct Certification
- Annual Compliance Meeting (for registered employees only)

CORPORATE CITIZENSHIP

Brighthouse Financial is committed to being a good corporate citizen and trusted partner to our government and regulatory stakeholders.

Public Policy Engagement

Brighthouse Financial engages with legislative and regulatory officials to advocate for sound public policy on matters that impact our business. This includes issues related to domestic state regulatory requirements, tax and investment, product development and distribution, as well as other issues impacting our customers, such as retirement security, data privacy, and underwriting. We advocate both directly and with the assistance of industry trade associations, such as the American Council of Life Insurers and Insured Retirement Institute.

Brighthouse Financial does not have a political action committee and does not provide corporate contributions to political campaigns. Our company complies with applicable laws and regulations related to the public disclosure of all U.S. federal lobbying activities on a quarterly basis, including entities and issues lobbied and related information, such as national trade association membership dues and other tax-exempt expenses paid. Additional details can be found on the U.S. Senate Lobbying Disclosure website.

Tax Strategy

Brighthouse Financial is committed to being a responsible taxpayer in compliance with all federal and state tax laws and regulations. Given that we are a domestic company, the majority of the taxes that we pay relate to business activities within the United States.

We seek to continually enhance our approach to corporate sustainability by focusing our efforts on the sustainability-related risks and opportunities most relevant to our company and stakeholders. Reflecting this focus, in 2022, we began acquiring state tax credits which align with our corporate values and overall business tax strategy.

In 2024, we acquired $2.6 million in state tax credits – resulting in a cumulative total of $8 million in state tax credits acquired since 2022.

These credits were designed to stimulate economic development and support investment in low-income housing across several jurisdictions – resulting in beneficial tax implications for our company as well as positive social and economic impacts to local communities.

SUSTAINABILITY AND CLIMATE-RELATED RISK

We integrate sustainability and climate-related risk considerations into our enterprise risk management framework and processes. The processes used to identify and assess related risk issues include:

- Stakeholder Engagement: We actively participate in ongoing dialogue with key stakeholders to solicit input and understand expectations regarding our company's strategy to manage sustainability and climate-related risks and publicly communicate our progress. Some of the ways in which we collect feedback include annual engagement calls with institutional investors, employee engagement surveys, regulatory consultations in collaboration with our trade association working groups, and responding to data requests from third-party rating organizations.
- Monitoring Regulatory Trends: In collaboration with our company's Compliance and Government Relations teams, the OOS monitors regulatory and policymaking activity to address sustainability and climate-related issues at the federal and state level. Through this process, we seek to understand expectations, participate in dialogue and feedback, and monitor and ensure progress towards our company's compliance with applicable regulations.

- Risk-Impact Assessments: We evaluate existing and emerging sustainability and climate-related risks through our sustainability materiality assessment process, which is completed every three years. Members of the OOS, CRM team, and relevant business departments collaborate to identify, assess, and measure relevant risks in alignment with the Brighthouse Financial Risk and Control Rating methodology. This methodology aims to promote consistency across our company's various internal risk processes. Considerations and findings of the assessment include a description of each risk and related impacts; the impact channel through which our company may experience direct or indirect losses – whether financial, reputational, legal/regulatory, or customer/operational in nature; the severity, frequency, and/or likelihood that impacts are expected to occur; and an evaluation of our company's control environment and overall strategy to mitigate, adapt, or respond to a specific risk. See the results of our 2024 Sustainability Materiality Assessment.
- Emerging Risk Program: Certain sustainability and climate risk issues may have yet to materialize or continue to evolve. Through our Emerging Risk Program, we administer processes to identify, evaluate, monitor, and respond to such risks relative to their potential likelihood of occurrence, magnitude of losses, and velocity (direction and speed of change) – helping to position Brighthouse Financial to proactively respond to risks once they emerge.

To complement our day-to-day engagement activities, investment guidelines, and policies applicable to external managers, the Brighthouse Financial Investments team administers quarterly reviews and annual on-site meetings to review portfolio performance and evaluate external managers more holistically. Where relevant, we dedicate time to better understand how sustainability and climate-related considerations are incorporated into their firm's investment process. Through these reviews, we seek evidence of adequate strategies, processes, and controls that are capable of long-term value creation and resilience within a rapidly evolving market.

Data and Reporting: Absent a universal standard to measure and disclose sustainability data, the strategies and frameworks used to assess a company's sustainability performance vary by external manager and asset class. Through quarterly performance reports, our external managers aim to provide transparent and accurate information regarding our portfolio performance. This includes updating the Brighthouse Financial Investments team on efforts being taken to further integrate sustainability and climate-related considerations into our investments. Measurements and data used may include proprietary ratings, third-party scores, or qualitative assessments, using more of a pass/fail approach.

Supplier Management

THIRD-PARTY RISK MANAGEMENT

We contract with third-party vendors to perform or support various business activities across our operations. To help ensure effective management of the potential risks that may arise from utilizing outsourced vendor services, our Third-Party Risk Management (TPRM) Program establishes rigorous standards, procedures, and controls that are integrated into our procurement process and ongoing vendor management activities.

The TPRM program, residing within CRM, is responsible for the oversight and assessment of a vendor's control environment to ensure that the vendor effectively executes its contractual responsibilities and safeguards access to our systems and data. In collaboration with internal business partners, the TPRM program helps to identify, measure, mitigate, and monitor third-party risk throughout a vendor's entire lifecycle.

SUPPLIER DIVERSITY

Our Supplier Diversity Program is designed to foster competition within our supplier base, generate economic opportunity, and contribute to equitable growth through our purchasing decisions. Wherever possible, we encourage diverse suppliers to participate in our procurement process for sourcing goods and/or services for our business. Since the program's inception, activities and efforts have centered on proactive engagement, research, and networking through diverse membership organizations.

We define a diverse supplier as any business that is at least 51% owned or operated by a member or members of a traditionally underrepresented or underserved group, including:

Racial and ethnic minorities

LGBTQIA+

Women

Veterans

2024 HIGHLIGHTS

In 2024, engagement activities included:

- Organizational sponsorships of diverse supplier membership councils to support diverse businesses in need of mentoring and/or certification assistance.
- Attending in-person and virtual matchmaking events to establish new connections and explore opportunities to enhance our Supplier Diversity Program initiatives and network.
- Discussion and review of supplier diversity program activity during internal business review meetings held by the Procurement team.

Climate Resilience

We recognize that climate change poses various risks to our company, global financial markets, society, and our planet. While the timing, likelihood, and scope of potential impacts resulting from climate-related risks continue to evolve, Brighthouse Financial continues to execute a focused approach to promoting business resilience and enhancing our internal capabilities to reasonably identify, measure, assess, and manage material climate-related risks to our company and our investments.

Our efforts center on increasing business resilience against climate-related physical and transition risks through the effective integration of climate risk topics into our enterprise risk management framework and practices, as well as improving institutional capacity for climate risk planning and management through targeted education, training, and awareness-raising initiatives.

CLIMATE RISK MANAGEMENT

The identification and analysis of climate-related risks is a dynamic process guided by short-term (0-1 year), medium-term (1-3 years), and long-term (3+ years) projections. To execute our business strategy and manage material risks to our company, Brighthouse Financial strives to integrate the most up-to-date risk information available into our strategic planning and risk management processes.

Bearing in mind the novel and evolving nature of the climate risk landscape, the following assessment aims to evaluate risks and potential impacts identified under certain hypothetical scenarios rather than make actual projections. We distinguish between two different types of climate-related risks:

- Physical risks are tangible risks that may arise due to climate change and global warming. Physical risks can be acute (such as an isolated severe weather event) or chronic (such as rising sea levels).
- Transition risks are risks related to the global transition to a low-carbon economy. Transition risks may be regulatory/policy, market, technological, or reputational in nature.

Risk Category	Description of Risk or Opportunity	Description of Potential Impacts	Time Horizon	Management Strategy
Physical Risks: Operational Continuity	A physical climate risk event – such as extreme weather, environmental hazard, or natural disaster – manifesting in any region where a physical infrastructure asset used within our upstream operations is located.	An isolated physical climate risk event can result in acute, negative impacts to our operational continuity in several ways. Examples include: • Operational: Event-induced evacuations, utility outages, and/or travel restrictions can result in office closures and operational disruptions. • Cybersecurity: Physical damage to information technology infrastructure assets can lead to network failure, inadequate safeguarding of data, and/or other disruptions to critical business processes. Potential financial implications include, among others, lost revenue, legal liabilities, and expenses related to incident response procedures. • Third-party: Physical climate risk impacts to third-party vendor operations or infrastructure may affect our business through service disruptions.	Short	We consider and integrate physical climate risk factors into our business resilience strategy and related programs. The Business Continuity Program, Disaster Recovery Program, and Crisis Management Program establish processes intended to reduce, mitigate, manage, and respond to potential external risks identified across our operational value chain – including those which may damage or negatively impact the safety of our employees, physical infrastructure assets, or the operational continuity of our business. Though physical climate risks such as extreme weather and natural disasters represent a business continuity risk to our company, we believe that our flexible, hybrid work model and our broad geographical footprint reduce our vulnerability to severe impacts from acute, near-term physical climate risk events. Where impacts to one operational node may result in temporary disruption, we expect the magnitude of this impact would be limited by the ability to rely on alternative service providers and facilities. Additionally, we require all third-party information technology providers to maintain backup systems and power supplies.

Risk Category	Description of Risk or Opportunity	Description of Potential Impacts	Time Horizon	Management Strategy
Physical and Transition Risks: Investment	Investment portfolio exposure to physical and transition climate-related risks impacting invested assets held in our General Account. Examples of physical risks include more frequent and severe extreme weather; rising sea levels; and changing climate conditions. Examples of transition risks include changing dynamics in energy and power markets due to technological innovation or regulatory curtailment.	Physical and transition climate-related risks will manifest in different ways across industry sectors and geographic regions, carrying various direct and indirect financial implications. Depending on the scale of each risk and scope of impacts, exposure to climate risk across our General Account may lead to lower returns and valuation of assets over time. Examples of potential impacts include: • Asset Impairment: Tangible assets domiciled in climate vulnerable regions may sustain physical damage due to physical climate risk events. • Adaptation and Resilience Costs: Coastal real estate assets may require significant capital investment to retrofit buildings against rising sea levels. • Lower Production: Changes in climate conditions can negatively impact an asset company's production capacity and financial performance, such as longer drought seasons and changes in precipitation patterns curtailing agricultural production.	Medium-to-Long	As long-term investors, we recognize the various financial implications that sustainability and climate-related issues may have on our investments. While the timing, likelihood, and intensity of such outcomes is unpredictable, we believe that the integration of sustainability and climate considerations into our investment management process strengthens our ability to anticipate and respond to emerging risks; identify value-based opportunities; and conduct a deeper, more holistic analysis of our investment portfolio. Transition Risks: Regulatory	Mandatory climate-related disclosure requirements within regulatory filings. Operational Investments to Collect and Report Data: Ensuring disclosures adequately align with regulatory requirements may result in additional expenses related to internal training and capacity building; accessing climate data resources and computing tools; securing external verification and assurance; and other administrative activities.	Short	The Office of Sustainability understands the importance of maintaining an effective data governance framework to ensure the preparation and disclosure of our company's climate-related information in alignment with regulatory requirements. Our ESG Data Management and Disclosure Policy and GHG Emissions Accounting Procedures establish processes and procedures intended to mitigate risks which could lead to the inconsistent, incomplete, or inaccurate reporting of climate-related data.
Transition Risks: Reputational	Negative stakeholder feedback regarding our company's performance and strategy to address climate risk issues against public commitments and industry standards.	Failure to adequately address climate risk can lead to negative customer and investor sentiment, carrying various indirect financial implications over the medium and long term. Examples of potential impacts include: - Inability to maintain competitive position among peers. - Perception of poor governance impacting risk profile. - Erosion of brand value over time.	Medium-to-Long	Using a range of engagement methods and communication platforms, we actively participate in ongoing dialogue with key stakeholder groups to solicit input and understand expectations regarding our company's strategy to manage climate-related risk and publicly communicate our progress. METHODOLOGY OVERVIEW

To promote consistency in publicly reported emissions data, the Brighthouse Financial 2024 GHG Inventory was prepared in accordance with the Greenhouse Gas Protocol (GHGP), the most widely recognized global standard used for carbon accounting and disclosure. This inventory includes GHG emissions that have resulted from the upstream activities most critical to our corporate operations.

Brighthouse Financial strives to continuously enhance the quality and transparency of our company's sustainability data and disclosures, including our annual carbon footprint. To the best of our ability, we prioritize data accuracy and reliability through the application of consistent GHGP accounting standards and calculation methodologies. In some cases, however, value chain emissions can be difficult to quantify due to challenges in data availability and measurement uncertainty. As a result, the underlying data used to calculate certain Scope 2 and Scope 3 category emissions represent estimations.¹⁰

Brighthouse Financial does not produce or disclose Scope 1 emissions, as all material emissions-generating activities that are critical to our upstream operations are performed using leased assets or by contracted vendors.

The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change Sixth Assessment Report (AR6) Global Warming Potential Set was applied to all emissions data calculations.

PRODUCT STRATEGY

Design and Development: Our products are designed to help people achieve financial security and protect what they have earned and ensure it lasts. We seek to develop innovative solutions that respond to changing trends and key financial challenges people face when saving for retirement, such as market volatility and rising health care costs.

Risk Management and Governance: We align our product designs with our pricing models and strict risk management guidelines. We have a robust business development process in which leaders from across the organization review, approve, and perform ongoing, necessary, and appropriate oversight of our product development initiatives. Our business development process also aims to help ensure we remain in optimal financial health so that we may continue to provide financial security to the customers we serve.

Product Marketing and Distribution: We deliver our annuity and life insurance products through multiple independent distribution channels and marketing arrangements with a geographically diverse, well-established network of over 400 distribution partners in the U.S. This includes but is not limited to national and regional broker-dealers, banks, independent financial professionals, independent marketing organizations, and other financial institutions and financial planners. Our distribution partners – financial professionals – market and sell our products to their clients.

Life Insurance Underwriting: We are committed to underwriting practices that foster the responsible use of customer data. A submitted application is the primary source of information used in our underwriting process, but in some cases we may also obtain information about an applicant from other sources.

For our life insurance business, we generally use noninvasive techniques to collect applicant data, determine eligibility, and communicate underwriting decisions typically within 72 hours. Through this innovative, accelerated approach, we provide an accessible, simple, and convenient experience for customers.

In addition, we inform customers about our approach to determining coverage eligibility – providing insight into the type of information we may collect, the processes and sources we may use to collect that information, and our underwriting risk assessment, which may involve the use of AI.

Service Experience and Satisfaction: We are committed to providing financial professionals and our customers with simple, functional experiences when engaging with our company. As part of that commitment, we continuously seek ways to further improve the quality of our products and services and increase customer satisfaction.

Financial professionals provide trusted insight, guidance, and expertise to customers seeking to strengthen their financial future. Targeted Content for New Audiences

In 2024, we continued efforts to provide financial professionals with resources and content designed to help them strengthen their relationships with clients, build connections with new consumer segments, and grow their business.

Women Planning for Retirement: Women control about $12 trillion in financial assets in the U.S. – a share that is expected to reach $30 trillion by 2030.¹⁴ However, many factors impact how women are preparing for retirement. To help empower more productive conversations between financial professionals and prospective and existing women clients, in 2024, we created resources and content designed to address women's unique retirement needs.

We launched the Women's Financial Empowerment Workshop, a customer-facing presentation, which explores various factors impacting how women prepare for retirement; goals for women to consider if they're married, unmarried but in a long-term partnership, happily single, divorced or widowed, own a business, or if they're still many years away from retirement; and actionable ways women can invest in their future. In addition, we developed a leave-behind flyer, "The New Era of Women Investors," containing relevant tips and action items. We also developed a new financial professional-facing presentation that focuses on helping women plan for the future. This presentation provides an overview of why there's a growing opportunity for financial professionals to work with women, as well as the various financial planning challenges faced by women who identify as divorced or widowed; unmarried and in a long-term relationship; mid-career and single; entrepreneurs; millennials; Black; Hispanic and Latina; or Asian American.
